Thomas Elmqvist

‘The battle of sustainability will be won or lost in cities’

Thomas Elmqvist will bring us fresh insights from the UN Conference on urban sustainability, held in Ecuador 17-20 October 2016, where the New Urban Agenda (NUA) was adopted. The focus is on making cities equitable, prosperous and sustainable.

Thomas is a professor in Natural Resource Management at Stockholm Resilience Centre, Stockholm University. He is an internationally recognized scholar for his work on sustainability and urbanization. Thomas is coordinating an interdisciplinary research project on management of ecosystem services in urban landscapes.

For participation please send an email to lovisa.eiriksdottir@swedesd.uu.se

Sustainability Talks is a series of transdisciplinary seminars at Campus Gotland with the ambition to link education and research with the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development - the new global framework for equality, peace and sustainability.
